More New Arrivals

By Patty Livingston

The Georgia Equine Rescue League (GERL) recently took in 3 horses from the 15 horses in Gwinnett County that were recently on the news. Participating in a large horse dispersal is not like ordinary horse shopping. You show up with your trailer and 3 horses that are separated from the rest is what you take home. There was a stallion, a gelding and a mare. All 3 were feral and loading them took the better part of 2 hours and extra people to work the panels that were used to push them to the open trailer.

Despite the tangles, the stallion was quite the looker with his exceptionally long mane. He also had the best body weight of the total herd, which is typical. He was immediately separated from the other two after we arrived at my farm. I gave them several days to settle in before trying to do any type of assessment, while playing the role of waitress. The other two horses, both Palominos, looked like twins and were attached at the hip. Both needed to gain weight. All three of the horses were young and the stallion was showing no signs of studliness, which was a relief.

It was hard to get very close to them. Their fear of humans did not allow anyone to get beside or behind them. I could touch the noses of both boys, but that was about it. The mare didn't allow any touching and ran off every time I came near her. After their second week here I saw little or no improvement and began to question how anybody was able to castrate the "gelding". Finally, I was able to get a quick look while feeding and sure enough, he was not a gelding. I had a goal that both boys would be domesticated enough by November to get in on our Stallion to Gelding Castration program.

I wasn't sure how that was going to happen, but I stuck to the goal. Jacki Moore volunteered to come over and work with Tucker, by sitting out in his paddock and ignoring him. He was very curious and sniffed her all over, but wouldn't allow being touched past his nose. After a week, we decided he should go to a trainer.

It has been almost a month since they came to live at my farm. They have gained weight and are looking good now. It is time that they move to the next phase of their lives where they will become domesticated and the two stallions will become geldings.

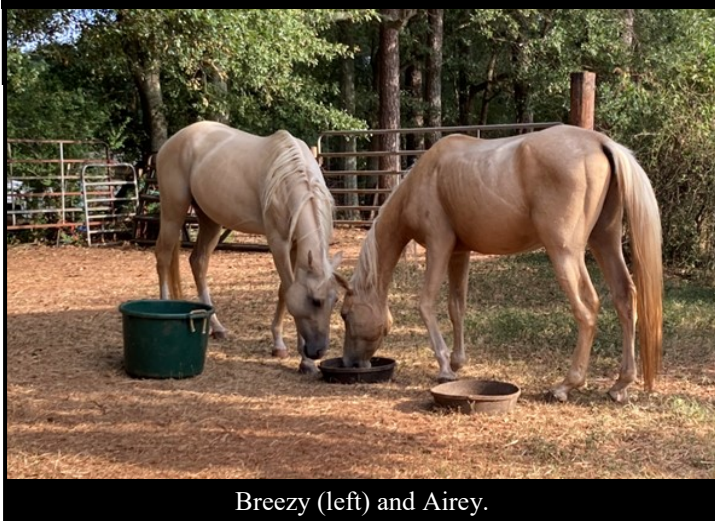

This feral trio is not our first experience with untouchable horses. Several years ago, we brought 6 feral horses into our program that we named "The Six Amigos". They went to trainers who were able to turn them into nice rideable partners. The Gwinnett horses will also go to a trainer who will introduce them to new possibilities! Look for updates in upcoming newsletters.

More New Arrivals - Gypsy & Derby

By Patty Livingston

Gypsy is a 24 year old tattooed Mustang mare that came into our program from law enforcement in the Spring of 2022. She was extremely hard to catch and avoided human interaction. In the Fall of 2022, she was adopted as a pasture pal by a gentleman who already had a TB gelding named Derby.

Over the next two years, Derby and Gypsy were like peas and carrots, depending on each other for companionship, complaining loudly, if separated. Life was good, and then, the property was sold and the people moved away, physically unable to care for their property or the horses any longer.

GERL received a phone call letting us know that Gypsy and Derby needed a new home immediately. Both horses came to my farm, which is where Gypsy lived before being adopted, so she was comfortable in her surroundings right away.

Derby, now 17 years old, loves people. He is a very sweet boy. We were told that he had a operation on one of his rear hocks many years ago, dictating a future of light riding only. He shows no signs of lameness.

GERL is offering both horses for adoption as pasture pals. Contact CeCe Calli for more information @gerlfoster@gerlltd.org.

Update on Classy and Midnight

By Patty Livingston

Thanks to so many generous people, Classy and Midnight have reached a place in their rehabilitation where they aren't so hard to look at, anymore. Their sharp points are now more rounded, and their coats are nice and shiny. Both horses have gained enough weight to receive their vaccinations and get their teeth floated, recently.

Classy on June 13th. Body Score of 1.

Both horses were picked up by Pierce County Animal Control from their neglectful owner and turned over to GERL a little over two months ago. It has been amazing to watch them bloom into the beautiful creatures God created.

Classy on August 16th, BS of 2.5.

Special thanks to Bar G Horse & Cattle Feed, located in Bishop, GA., who ran a contest offering a chance to win a nice gift basket for those who purchased a bag of

Midnight on June 13th, Body Score 2.5

Triple Crown Senior feed for Classy and Midnight. They were able to secure 32 bags of feed for the pair and Triple Crown feed also donated 20 bags, for a total of 52 bags of feed!

After 3 months of rehabilitation with good feed and hay, both horses were ready to find their forever homes. Midnight went to live with Penny Kwirant and her mare, Airy, who needed a companion. He now goes by Mac and is living the life of Riley. Classy, who is now known as Pumpkin, has gone to a new foster home where she is receiving the attention and love that she deserves. Words hardly seem adequate to thank all the horse lovers who have helped make the life of these two senior horses better than ever. It makes me proud to be a part of something so wonderful!

Midnight on August 16th, BS of 4.0.

More New Arrivals - Burke Co. Threesome

By Patty Livingston

The Three Musketeers

GERL received a phone from the Burke County Animal Control supervisor who had taken in 3 horses from their owner and was looking for a rescue organization that would take them. I drove to Waynesville to pick them up in mid-August and brought them back to my farm where I stashed them temporarily on my neighbor's property while we figured out what we had and who needed to go where.

The small herd consisted of a 25 year old TWH mare named Princess, Rocket, her 5 year old TWH gelding son, and an 8 year old gelding named Dart, who was their leader. They had been in the custody of Burke Co. Animal Control for a couple of months so they were already fattened up, with the exception of Princess, who needed a topline.

Within a week or so, both boys were picked up by Tinker Moffitt for thirty days of training. Dart proved to be a very smart and willing boy and was adopted right away. Princess also went to her forever home in the North Georgia mountains where she has other horses to hang with all day.

GERL is offering Rocket for adoption. He now is a rideable horse and is super sweet. Contact CeCe Calli for more information at: gerlfoster@gerlltd.org

They Found Their Forever Homes

By Patty Livingston

They say that timing is everything and that is exactly what this happy ending is really about. Sizzlena is a 22 yr. old QH mare that has been in our foster program for over a year. She is a pretty girl and one would wonder why she was not already adopted, but fate has a way of controlling things, perhaps?

Allen Brock, one of GERL's Area Coordinators, saw a photo of Sizzlena that was posted on social media and called CeCe about a possible adoption. Allen had recently lost a horse that left a need for a companion for one of Allen's other horses. He contacted Karen, Sizzlena's foster mom, and worked out the details.

Sizzlena has finally found her perfect forever home and Allen has another pretty face to look at every day!

Big thanks to Karen for the love and care that she has provided to Sizzlena for the past year and to Allen for giving her the forever home she needed!

Sizzlena enjoying her new home and new friend.

Princess hit the jackpot, don't you think?

Princess (left), a 25 year old Tennessee Walking Horse mare, went to her forever home up in the mountains of north Georgia with Anita Caston who previously adopted Bennett and Jazzy from GERL.

Anita and her husband, Howie, have a beautiful place with large green pastures and a mountain view that any horse (or human) would love. She enjoys watching and taking care of the horses and several miniature donkeys and it appears that she is living her dream!

What is so amazing about Anita is that she always adopts the "not so easy to place" horses. Twenty-five year old Princess certainly hit the jackpot on her forever home and we couldn't be happier for her.

Supporting law enforcement means that you often don't know what you're getting until you get them home. As one would expect, many are elderly and have served their purpose to their owners. Older horses need a home too, and we are very grateful for folks like Anita.

Happy Trails to Princess and to her new happy life with plenty of companions and people who love her!

Red Wing, a Life Revised

By Gloria Bell

In mid-April, a call was received on the GERL hotline from Kate. Kate's older sister (Daina) was fighting stage 4 cancer and was unable to care for her horse. Daina was hopeful to be healed and wasn't ready to sell or re-home her longtime friend, Red Wing. Kate still wanted to be prepared and called GERL to start understanding all that is involved in re-homing a horse.

I explained to Kate that GERL doesn't necessarily re-home horses, however, we would be happy to help her by developing a flyer and getting the word out when the time came. Kate received our outline that assists owners in re-homing, to prepare for what would be needed if the time came to move forward with finding Red Wing a new home.

That sad day came when I received an email (late July) from Kate sharing that Daina had passed away. Kate really needed some help. She wasn't a horse person; she was in the military and worked out of state. Her younger sister (Sarah) was on-site caring for Daina and the farm. Sarah had been Daina's full-time caregiver for several months.

Kate began providing all the information she could about Red Wing utilizing GERL's re-homing outline. She did everything right in preparing for Red Wing to have a new "WONDERFUL" home. The communication she provided, and the measures Kate took were the key to Red Wing being placed in the perfect home. We put together a detailed flyer and communicated about an application process, as I agreed to handle the process of vetting possible new owners for them. The flyer was circulated on social media, shared by many and our Area Coordinators in and around that county circulated it as well.

It wasn't enough for a family already grieving, going through heart ache, the day after Daina's funeral, Kate's father was at Daina's residence with Red Wing. He was visited by a couple (that had helped some in the past with the animals), that brought their vet along. They accused Daina's father of not caring for Red Wing, demeaning Red Wings condition, all to force the father to agree to give up Red Wing. These folks had the father leave Red Wing in the front of the home so they could easily access him and pick him up the following day. Kate became aware of the situation and immediately stopped Red Wing from going anywhere. She contacted us for advice, as I explained those people would be trespassing if they returned and had no right to do this to her father, especially since Red Wing was not in the condition they stated. I explained that if they returned after she informed them, the law should be involved so they are aware of the situation. Additionally, if these folks wanted Red Wing so bad, they should follow the same application process as everyone else. Kate went to the Sheriff's office and reported the situation to eliminate further abuse from people trying to take advantage of the situation.

There were several requests for applications, a few were received back. The application process helps in surfacing folks that are prepared to have a horse and are serious about their care. Additionally, I helped Kate understand the questions to potential owners that were critical. If they didn't like the questions, they didn't need the horse. Kate even asked to go and see where Red Wing would be living, the potential new owner (Tara) was happy to show Kate and Sarah.

Red Wing found a wonderful new home to live in a pasture with a mare that was older like him, that was not being ridden any longer. While he will miss all the sheep he lived with and Daina, having a new pasture mate like him was a great ending to this sad story.

Red Wing, a Life Revised

By Gloria Bell

Hope you enjoy the images of Life, Love and the New Home for Red Wing.

Here is what secured Red Wing's great new home:

- A Veterinarian scheduled by Kate and Sarah had visited Red Wing in late spring to provide vaccinations, deworming, Coggins, float and a full physical.
- He continued to be cared for with proper senior feed, hay and fresh water daily to keep him healthy and prepare for the stresses of a possible new home.
- Kate provided every bit of the information on him that she could to include name, breed, hands, color, age, how he could be handled, groundwork, prior training, demeanor, etc. For someone that wasn't around horses much, Kate and Sarah's care for Red Wing in their sisters' final days was astonishing.

GERL has a great outline that can be provided to anyone considering re-homing a horse. Making your horse very marketable is important to them landing in a great place. It keeps kill buyers and bad actors away. Horses are shifted everywhere and end up being rescued from bad situations. At GERL, we urge you to take the time and go to some expense to ensure they land in green pastures for the long haul.

Puttin' On The Feed Bag Recipe Butternut Squash Fritters

Ingredients

- 3 cups shredded butternut squash
- 1 cup shredded sharp white Cheddar cheese
- 2/3 cup all purpose flour
- 2 large eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 1/2 teaspoons chopped fresh thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon salt, plus more for sprinkling
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, or more as needed

Directions

- Gather all ingredients.
- Combine the squash, cheese, flour, eggs, thyme, salt, and pepper in a large bowl.
- Heat 2 tablespoons oil in a large skillet over medium. Working in batches, drop batter by 3 tablespoon portions into hot oil. Flatten mounds into 3 inch circles.
- Cook until golden, 3 to 4 minutes, turning once.
- Sprinkle with salt immediately after removing from the skillet. Keep warm in a 200 degrees F (95 degrees C) oven while cooking remaining fritters. Add additional oil as needed during cooking. Serve warm.

GERL & EIP to Host 6-Day Equine Event with Active Duty at Ft. Stewart

The Georgia Equine Rescue League is dedicated to making a difference through our support of active duty at Ft. Stewart by offering them an opportunity to experience the magic of the horse. GERL has previously hosted 2 four-day events, along with our New Hampshire partner, Equine Immersion Project (EIP). On October 21-26, 2024, we will host a 6-day event which will include the families of the participants on the last day.

Never has the need for a program like this been so crucial. Every day, 22 Veterans die by suicide in America. GERL and EIP seek to bring awareness to this heartbreaking statistic that highlights the severe crisis faced by those who have bravely served our nation.

By sharing this article with your network and engaging with us on social media, you can help spread awareness about hope and healing through the power of the horse.

We invite you to become a supporter of our Ft. Stewart community. As a supporter, you will provide unwavering support and care, ensuring our heroes always have someone to lean on with the equine-related program that we offer at Ft. Stewart bi-annually.

Your contributions will make a profound impact, offering the support they need to heal and thrive. Thank you for joining us in this vital mission. Together, we can create a future where every service member feels supported, empowered, and able to lead a fulfilling life. Your dedication means the world to us and to the heroes we serve.

To make a one-time donation or become a monthly supporter, visit <https://gerlltd.org>

Warm regards,

Patty

Leslie Lambert Accepts GERL Board Position

By Patty Livingston

Leslie Lambert was recently added to the GERL Board of Directors with a unanimous vote. She is filling the position of Alternate Board Member, previously filled by Linda Kundell who retired from that position after serving for over eight years. I want to extend a huge "thank you" to Linda for her service over the many years, as well as to Leslie for volunteering to fill the position.

Leslie has been a member of GERL for many years and has always been a faithful volunteer, many times doing the things that nobody likes to do. She already wears the hat as our Volunteer Coordinator, but she always helps with gathering donations, transporting horses or just about anything that comes her way. Leslie is also a recipient of the much-coveted Marty Paulk Cheerleader Award as a testament to her dedication to GERL.

Big thanks to Leslie for her support and dedication!

Join our Feed A Horse Program

Donations will be applied directly towards feed and hay for horses located in the Veteran facilities that GERL supports, as well as the horses taken into GERL's foster program. Currently, the cost for rehabilitating a horse is approximately $150 per month, per horse.

Make your TAX DEDUCTIBLE donation through the Georgia Equine Rescue League, Ltd. "Feed a Horse" program. We need your help so that these horses can live.

Get involved! Ask your friends, family, co-workers and others to help raise money to feed the horses!

For those of you who like to know where GERL spends your donated dollars, below is an update on our impact directly to horses since our last quarterly newsletter:

- GERL spent $7,542 for feed, hay, vet care and farrier service for our foster horses.
- GERL spent $636.00 on the castration of 5 horses.
- GERL spent $3,227 on training and transporting horses.
- GERL SPENT A TOTAL OF $11,405 THIS QUARTER DIRECTLY HELPING HORSES.

What's Happening with the Horses of Cumberland Island

On August 23, 2024, a motion was filed with the Court to ask the Court to order that the horses on Cumberland Island be supplemented with water and forage, due to the original petition that was filed in April of 23 is still pending.

The Defendants' responded in early September. The Defendants are still choosing to avoid the merits of case of suffering horses and arguing rather frivolous legal theories. It boils down to what Judge Geraghty wishes to do. She has the discretion to do whatever she wishes. We are still waiting on her verdict.

A Brief Update from Horses & Warriors

By Sara Reams

The Calvin Center's Horses & Warriors are just getting started up after their summer break. They used the two mini horses, Garth Brooks and Maggie Mae, for a Friday meeting with the Veterans and as they were leading them back to their pasture, 3 little butterflies flew right in front of Garth Brooks face. Well, the little guy broke the lead rope and took off running around the barn. He ran through the barn aisle a couple of times, scattering veterans, and round and round the barn. He had the happiest look on his face! What began as a fright turned into pure joy at his excitement. Such fun to watch!

Gypsy is a 22 year-old Mustang mare that first came into the GERL foster program in 2022 and was adopted that same year. Due to recent changes she has returned to our program. She is very shy and hard to catch, but once caught, she leads and loads. Gypsy has spent most of her life as a companion horse. She is healthy and require no meds.

Derby is a 17 year old TB Gelding. He is 16 hh and very sweet. He loves people and has good ground manners, stands for the farrier and vet. He is current on all vaccines and Coggins. Derby had a hock operation years ago, preventing him from being a performance horse. He is a very non-aggressive horse in the pasture and gets along well with others.

AREA COORDINATORS NEEDED in MIDDLE AND SOUTH GEORGIA!

We Need You!! Please consider volunteering to be GERL's horse "go to person" in your area. The types of things that you might be asked to do would be to perform a "drive-by" to check out a "skinny horse" report in your area. Perhaps someone in your area has applied to adopt one of our horses and we need someone to perform a farm visit. Please call Gloria Bell at (706) 392-7520 if you can spare a little of your time.

LET ME SAY THIS...ABOUT THAT

By Patty Livingston, President

It has been an extremely busy last few months with an unusual amount of activity coming from various county law enforcement organizations requesting help with horses. It wasn't long ago that I was complaining that the counties were not calling us about any horse situations. In fact, we only had one call from law enforcement since the Georgia Department of Agriculture (GDA) closed their impound barns in March of 2020. That call came in September of 2022 and involved 13 horses that were legally seized from their neglectful owner. I'm referring to "The Baker's Dozen" which ended up being tied up in court for a year and a half before GERL received a Release of Ownership. Due to the cost involved with rehabilitation for so many over-sized horses (most were Warmbloods and Thoroughbreds), I was relieved that we weren't getting called by other counties, asking us to take a horse.

Almost immediately after adopting out the last few Baker's Dozen horses, things started to heat up with local Animal Controls and Sheriff's offices all over Georgia, but especially in the southern part. First, we received a call about an older mare and gelding that were being taken from their owner that were in very poor condition. We named them Classy and Midnight and they appeared on social media, drawing attention to the severity of their starvation.

Within a couple of weeks, we received a call from Burke County Animal Control, and they had 3 horses ready to go that we had previously committed to bringing into our program. Within a couple of weeks, we separated the 2 geldings out of that herd and sent them to a trainer, hoping to get them adopted from there. I barely had a chance to enjoy my reduced herd when I received a phone call from Gwinnett Animal Control requesting help with a 15-horse seizure. I came home with 2 stallions and a mare that I had to stash on my neighbor's property since I was running out of room. We adopted Midnight and Princess, and they were immediately replaced with a mustang mare named Gypsy and Derby, her Thoroughbred companion.

It has been a whirlwind of horses coming and going and during all this activity it has become very clear that GERL needs more foster homes. We need homes that can quarantine for a short period of time since many horses coming in from law enforcement may not have a current Coggins. We also need foster homes with pastures. If you are able to help out by fostering, please reach out to CeCe Calli and request a foster application. (gerlfoster@gerlltd.org)

Algae in the Water Trough...again

By Lisa Clark

I follow various equine nutrition related forums and veterinarians on social media and am always on the lookout for new info or tips to help with the horses. As we know, water consumption is critical to our horse's health and a frequent topic this summer has been how to encourage them to drink. Clean fresh water is key and many discussions centered on the "best" way to keep algae at bay when using the large livestock tubs. So when Facebook (in its all-knowing "wisdom") popped a post related to this topic on my news feed, I was hooked. Consequently the Jones County Texas Extension Service soon had me following progress of their project along with numerous others.

To be brief, Jones County is located near Abilene, TX and includes numerous large cattle ranches. The post was about a 30 day demonstration project done evaluating common approaches owners use to mitigate algae growth in water troughs. Two of these approaches are often discussed in the equine forums I follow. While the focus of the demonstration was water quality for cattle, I thought Georgia horse owners would still be interested. Clay Cole, County Extension Agent in Jones County, TX graciously gave GERL permission to share the article. Their end results are summarized in the image below. However, the details, complete with photos and explanations can be viewed by copying the link to your browser or scanning the QR code on your mobile device. If you have questions specific to the demonstration project, please contact the Jones County Extension Office at jones-tx@tamu.edu.

Hello Patty.

I am searching for a reputable 501(c)3 rescue in the hopes of donating a portion of my upcoming book sales. I need an honest, God loving group who is willing to help me get the word out. I have hundreds of hours in this book, and two of the horses in it are my own beloved MFT rescue Rusty, and my TWH rescue Luke.

I am a teacher, and my husband is a disabled veteran and retired police officer. I am very serious about helping more horses find a loving forever home. The book is for children, and is about unicorns. Please let me know if you are interested. You were recommended to me on Facebook, and when I went through your website, I really felt like you might be perfect. I really love your help with veterans too!

You can check out my first two books on Amazon, and my website is www.feathersgift.com.

Thank you,

Carla Tribble

Saving Unicorns

By Carla Tribble

Hello members of GERL!

I am a veteran science teacher, now in my 26th year of teaching teenagers. I love animals, especially Golden Retrievers and horses. I am blessed to share my life with both. Last year I began writing children's books, in the hopes of encouraging young ones to love and respect animals. Feather, my beloved late Golden Retriever, is the main character in my first books. She was my best friend for 13 years, and grew up in my classroom. She touched many lives at school as well as in the community, where she proudly served as a therapy dog. She was everyone's favorite in the Paws to Read program at the local library. My publishing company is lovingly and rightfully named "Feather's Gift."

Luke, my beloved Tennessee Walker rescue, plays a key role in my first book, Feather and the Lonesome Firefly. Both he and Rusty, also a rescue, are important characters in the upcoming book, Feather and the Unicorns. I fully understand how challenging and expensive a rescue horse can be. I do believe, however, that rescue horses are unicorns in disguise, and that with love and care, they can absolutely be that for those of us who earn it. Luke and Rusty certainly have been mine.

My dream from the beginning of my writing journey was to somehow find a way to help rescue other horses. I prayed for guidance many times. This world is challenging for many, yet it seems that the horses are the ones who often pay the highest price. They all deserve a chance to be loved, and to touch lives, like my wonderful boys have touched mine. I am determined to make that happen, and I now have a path to do just that!

I am absolutely THRILLED to say that I have partnered with GERL on this wonderful adventure. I admire the dedication this group has shown to the horses, and the teamwork involved to make it happen. I love how children are involved. After all, they will be the ones to carry on with this important mission. Finally, when I saw the veteran's program, I knew without a doubt that I had found the right group to share my dream. Both my husband and my father are disabled veterans. God has definitely led me to the right group of people.

This upcoming book has a beautiful story that I feel horse (and dog) lovers will find a real connection with. It's the story you want to believe is true, whether you are five or 105 years old. It is dyslexia friendly. The illustrations, which actually include Luke, Rusty, and Feather (along with her "stunt double") are specially designed to be inclusive to colorblind children. I do believe my books are the first of their kind for that.

A portion of each sale will proudly be donated to GERL, and I do plan to share an entire unicorn series in the future. If you would like to support this endeavor and be part of this special journey, please check for it on Amazon. It will be available in paperback on October 25th.

If you have questions, suggestions, or just want to reach out, please find me at www.feathersgift.com or scan the QR code. My website is just beginning, but I have dreams for that too. Feather's Gift also has a new Facebook page if you'd like to follow. I would truly love to hear from you!

Let's go save some unicorns!!

~Carla

When they climbed back down, Rusty was waiting.
"Walk with me," he said. She was happy to join him.

They wandered through an incredible forest. Beautiful flowers covered the ground. "Touch one," he told her.

When Feather's paw touched the flower, its petals turned into tiny, sparkling lights. They danced around her like fireflies, and floated up into the sky. Feather's eyes lit up with their reflection.

"That's how love works," said Rusty. "Its form may change, but it never disappears."

Georgia Equine Rescue League Area Coordinator Update

By Gloria Bell

A GERL Area Coordinator Meeting was held on Thursday, September 26th.

The purpose of this meeting was to cover several topics with regard to Re-Homing Horses. Although GERL does not actively rehome horses, GERL receives a great deal of calls, and the requests are becoming more frequent.

We covered what GERL "CAN DO" and "HOW GERL CAN HELP".

GERL Area Coordinators have an opportunity to educate communities about how rehoming a horse can end well or end very poorly for the horse. There are many bad actors wanting horses for all the wrong reasons and this is an opportunity for GERL to help horse owners understand this and all the variables involved with finding their horse a good, caring home.

GERL's Re-Homing A Horse Outline (document) is very detailed with the information an owner needs to consider when re-homing their horse(s). It's important that we provide additional expertise that we know and understand all too well, being a part of GERL. Sharing examples and past experiences is key to helping an owner make an informed decision selecting the new owner that will be capable to care for them in the long term.

GERL is always looking for Area Coordinators to become part of the team. Contact Gloria Bell at (706) 392-7520 if you would like to join our team.

GERL Volunteer of the Quarter

By Patty Livingston

This quarter's volunteer is someone who wears many hats and has been a loyal volunteer for the Georgia Equine Rescue League (GERL) for more than 10 years. She is a GERL Board member, serving as our Treasurer since 2022, but best known as her role as Foster and Adoption Coordinator, which she has handled for many years. I am talking about none other than CeCe Calli, if you haven't guessed.

GERL has had a sudden influx of horses, most coming from law enforcement, and CeCe has spun her magic to find them the perfect forever homes. She has a knack for pairing the right horse with the right human. Rescue organizations are typically measured by the horses' length of stay before being rehomed and CeCe does an excellent job of keeping the revolving door turning which enables GERL to help more horses. It is a lot of work, hours on the phone and computer, yet she never complains.

CeCe is also a foster mom and offers her beautiful farm to many of the horses that come through our program. Oh, and let me not forget that she was also a recipient of the Marty Paulk Cheerleader Award!

GERL's success depends on the team of people who represent it, and I am forever grateful to volunteers like CeCe Calli who have stepped up to make a difference in the world of horses!

Thank You, CeCe!

TO KNOW HIM IS TO LOVE HIM

By Penny Kwirant

This is a story about Mac, McPhee, Midnight. He was rescued by The Georgia Equine Rescue League in July 2024 (I think) from a couple who did not want to give him up, but didn't want to take care of him properly either. He was a 2.5 on the Henneke scale. Luckily, he ended up with Patty Livingston and was properly set on the road to health.

Back to the beginning. I live on a small ranch adjacent to a grass runway. My husband and I moved from Florida to find a property where I could have my horses (2 at the time) and he could have his airplanes. We looked all over Florida but could never find anything that we thought would stay dry.

We ended up in Georgia in October of 2003. The house and hangar were ready, but there was no barn or fencing. I boarded my horses about 15 minutes away at a small boarding facility and went to work finding someone to build my barn and fence my pasture. This all became a reality in December of 2003, before Christmas, which was my goal.

After six months of bliss, one of my horses broke his leg and everything changed. In the process of finding the right horse to replace him, I ended up with three more horses. Their ages were 10, 4 and 15 months. The one that I had left from Florida was 3. My little herd of four were together for almost twenty years. Then in January, 2023, we decided to send our now 28-year-old over the Bridge because she had severe arthritis in her back and we had tried everything. This started the ball rolling down the mountain. Over the next two months we surprisingly lost two more of the herd. The one we had left was the aforementioned 15-month-old who was now 20 years old.

I decided she needed a companion so I ended up adopting a purebred Egyptian Arabian who was also 20 years old. It wasn't a match made in heaven but they worked things out and found a relationship that worked for them. Back to bliss. All was good, until . . . out of the blue we lost the last of the original herd. After having the herd for about twenty years, it was wiped out in thirteen months. The only horse left was the horse I had adopted as a companion. Her name is Airy and even though I could have sent her back to the rescue, I couldn't do that to her because I think she felt safe and loved. We changed our horse practices to allow her to have choices. The barn stayed open day and night and she had the choice to be in the front of the barn, in her stall or out in the pasture during the day. At night it was either her stall or around the barn.

Things seemed to be okay, but not perfect. As the weeks turned into 3 months, she seemed good enough, but I believe she was always on guard. She was not used to being totally by herself, especially at night. She had always been in the company of other horses all of her life, even if many of those horses severely picked on her and she has the scars to prove it. I don't know a lot about her but I do know that people also hurt her as you can tell by the halter scar on her face. She was shuffled in and out of rescue after being adopted and then starved. I was not going to send her back to any of that. We are together for life.

Anyway, even though I didn't want to play the get another companion game, I started thinking about getting one for her. I had been following a couple of rescues online but they were far away. One day I decided to look at the GERL website just to see if they had any horses for adoption. There were three listed so after thinking about the description of each one I chose a mare who was about 25 and was described as having been used to being by herself and at the lowest of the pecking order in a herd setting. She sounded perfect for Airy so I filled out the application.

Delivery day – Meeting Airy

TO KNOW HIM IS TO LOVE HIM

By Penny Kwirant

That same day I e-mailed the application to CeCe. She got back to me quickly and said that just that day the foster of this horse decided they wanted to adopt. BUT, she had others that needed a home. One of those was a 20+ year old registered trotter that was named Midnight. I saw the intake photo and then an updated photo that was better, and another after that which was even better. He was a beautiful horse who was described as being a gentleman to the mare he was living with. I was told later that the mare picked on him terribly so he was ready to get out of that situation. I requested to adopt him and Patty brought him to me on September 11, 2024. He came out of the trailer and things were calm. Patty stayed for a bit and we talked and watched him eat grass. It all looked great.

Well, when Patty pulled out of our property and my husband and I were going to go back up to the house, Airy turned into a crazy horse and every time Midnight was anywhere near us or it looked like he may be coming near us, she would charge at him faster than I have ever seen her run with her teeth barred and her tail flagging. Once we were out of the pasture, things did calm down, but they kept their distance from each other. The next day was similar when either of us came down to the barn to clean or feed or put to bed. On the third day things calmed down a lot. They were eating grass near each other and Airy was not being as crazy when either of us was in the area. It still wasn't perfect, but it was doable.

From then on, things quickly got much better. They started to always be in the vicinity of each other. Now Airy does not lay down to rest. When she first got here she laid flat out in the pasture and once in her stall at night (we have cameras and we thought she was sick but she wasn't). In the last year, I don't believe she has laid down once. She would stand to sleep and her nose would almost touch the ground then her front knees would buckle and wake her up. But, just a couple days ago, she laid down outside and took a nap, under the watchful gaze of Midnight. Today as I was coming up the driveway, they were snoozing next to each other. I was elated. And this afternoon Midnight laid down and slept while Airy grazed nearby.

Back to Midnight. He has a freeze brand on his neck because he did spend time at the track. I started researching and joined the US Trotting Association so I was able to get records. I am not a full-blown member, just enough to search the records for information on him.

First of all, his registered name is McPhee. His sire's name was BJ's Mac so we now call him Mac for short. I got his 5-generation pedigree, not that I know anything about those family names, but some of them were big winners. Mac raced ten times out but never made a dime. I guess that's why I ended up with him. He is worth the biggest purse to me but I don't think he has the attitude to be a killer opponent and win races. He is the sweetest boy and I truly love him already. I know Airy has changed her tune about him too and my desire is that they will fall in love and get married, which may be happening.

Needless to say, Mac has found his forever home. I am thankful that what I thought I wanted was not what we all needed. God has a way of listening, laughing and deciding the best way to proceed and he did his usual amazing works in this unexpected pairing.

Midnight is now known as Mac.

One little side note. Mac's birthday is March 5, 2003, Airy's birthday is March 10, 2003 and Little Bit's (the horse that passed away in June) birthday was March 14, 2003. I actually thought that was amazing and that all of this was meant to be. Thank you, CeCe and Patty for making this happen. It is a match made in heaven as far as I can see.

Things are smooth every day now and I am hoping this is the happily ever after for both of these adopted horses. They deserve a chance to be at peace, not look over their shoulders for possible danger and to eat on a regular schedule. For however long I have them I will do my best to make sure, as it pertains to me, that they have this every day for the rest of their lives.
